

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (multiple cores), for new datasets, should the information about the relationship between core depth and composite depth be considered essential, recommended or desired?

