

When reporting datasets based on marine sediments archives (foraminiferal trace element), for new datasets, should the contamination indicators be considered essential, recommended or desired?

