

When reporting datasets based on marine sediments archives (micropaleontological), for new datasets, should the raw counts be considered essential, recommended or desired?

