

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (magnetic data), for new datasets, should the position of the core within the lake basin be considered essential, recommended or desired?

