

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (compound specific isotope), for new datasets, should the source of compound in sediments be considered essential, recommended or desired?

