

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (magnetic data), for new datasets, should the flag that the signal recorded hasn't been altered by geochemistry be considered essential, recommended or desired?

