

When reporting datasets based on trees archives (stable isotope), for new datasets, should the if it is a tropical tree how was the age model established be considered essential, recommended or desired?

