

When reporting datasets based on marine sediments archives (foraminiferal trace element), for new datasets, should the method of sediment disintegration and washing be considered essential, recommended or desired?

