

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (imagery data), for new datasets, should the original measurements be considered essential, recommended or desired?

