

When reporting datasets based on marine sediments archives (foraminiferal trace element), for new datasets, should the number of specimens utilized per sample be considered essential, recommended or desired?

