

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (density), for new datasets, should the water content/porosity be considered essential, recommended or desired?

