

When reporting datasets based on ice core archives, for new datasets, should the all proxy observations determined in the core be considered essential, recommended or desired?

