

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (particle size), for new datasets, should the particle size type be considered essential, recommended or desired?

