

When reporting datasets based on ice core archives, for new datasets, should the borehole temperatures be considered essential, recommended or desired?

