

When reporting datasets based on marine sediments archives (foraminiferal boron isotope), for new datasets, should the separation method be considered essential, recommended or desired?

