

When reporting datasets based on marine sediments archives (foraminiferal stable isotope), for new datasets, should the number of specimens utilized by sample be considered essential, recommended or desired?

