

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (compound specific isotope), for new datasets, should the sample depth be considered essential, recommended or desired?

