

When reporting datasets based on uncertainties (measured variable), for new datasets, should the if based on reproducibility, number of repeat measurements be considered essential, recommended or desired?

