

When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (density), for new datasets, should the density type (inferred or measured) be considered essential, recommended or desired?

