

When reporting datasets based on cross archives, for new compilations, should the unique identifier to the time series used in the compilation be considered essential, recommended or desired?

