

When reporting datasets based on trees archives, for new datasets, should the average ring width be considered essential, recommended or desired?

