

When reporting datasets based on speleothem archives (physical sample), for new datasets, should the drip type be considered essential, recommended or desired?

