When reporting datasets based on speleothem archives (sample data), for legacy datasets, should the thickness of analyzed sample be considered essential, recommended or desired?