When reporting datasets based on historical documents archives, for new datasets, should the language of the quote (or its translation) be considered essential, recommended or desired?