When reporting datasets based on cross archives, for legacy datasets, should the instrument type be considered essential, recommended or desired?