When reporting datasets based on ice core archives, for legacy datasets, should the whether the bedrock has been reached be considered essential, recommended or desired?