When reporting datasets based on chronologies (relative chronologies), for new datasets, should the alignment target be considered essential, recommended or desired?