When reporting datasets based on cross archives, for legacy datasets, should the calibration model be considered essential, recommended or desired?