When reporting datasets based on cross archives, for new compilations, should the compilation name be considered essential, recommended or desired?