When reporting datasets based on lake sediments archives (imagery data), for legacy datasets, should the data reduction methods (peak or trough area method) be considered essential, recommended or desired?